

What is claimed is:

- i. A banner management method encoded on a computer-readable medium operating on a browser user interface on terminals in a network of terminals, the method comprising the steps of: (1) initialising a command file with inputs from a system administrator of the network, including providing an interface by which the system administrator can customize banners displayed on each browser interface; and (2) executing the command file, thus displaying banners as ordered by the command file